

Statement regarding the Corona Virus (COVID-19)

Dear customer,

As long as there is no “all-clear signal” surrounding the spread of the Coronavirus, and the situation remains totally unpredictable, we continue to respond as best we can to a continuously changing operating environment.

Our employees are all fully apprised of the situation and our purchasing staff are in continuous contact with our raw material suppliers.

We are, nevertheless, obliged to advise you that despite all precautionary measures, certain bottlenecks may develop: we have to anticipate the risks of raw material shortages and potential transportation issues. Production personnel may also be absent due to illness.

The WHO has classified this event as an international public health emergency. If there are production issues meaning that we cannot supply you as planned, we therefore classify the situation as one of force majeure.

We are continuously monitoring the situation and will do everything in our power to meet all confirmed orders. We request you, nonetheless, to anticipate delivery delays and build these into your planning.

For further clarification, please liaise with your usual sales and marketing contacts or under sales@pfarr.de

Yours sincerely,
